

Major Battles Shaping Up In U.S. Senate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the first test of their Senate power still in the balance, the Democratic nominees Monday lined up for another major battle against dissenting members of their own party and against the Republicans.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, the presidential candidate, pushed ahead on his minimum wage bill with the aid of his running mate, Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson. They're trying to increase the hourly minimum from $1 to $1.25 and extend coverage to five million more workers against stiff opposition from Republicans and several Democrats, mostly from the South.

It's not clear yet when this first major test of the Kennedy-Johnson team will be concluded but the two candidates made it clear Monday they're ready to take on the same coalition in a floor fight over health insurance for the aged. Kennedy and Johnson want a broad program under Social Security.

This struggle, likely to open next week, will offer the Massachusetts and Texas senators an even more difficult challenge. The minimum wage bill had committee approval but on the old age health insurance they must override committee recommendations on the floor if their views are to prevail.

Vote With GOP

The Finance Committee approved a measure calling for federal-state grants as Democrats, headed by Chairman Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, voted 6-5 with the Republicans. Thus they turned their backs on the Democratic platform call for a bill to put such insurance into the Social Security program.

The House reconvened Monday, a week behind the Senate, and found little to do until the Senate acts on major legislation much of which already has passed the House. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas tried to dispose of some routine business through unanimous consent but was blocked by Republican H. R. Gross of Iowa who insisted on a quorum roll call. This showed only 161 present while the required majority is 217 and the House had to adjourn without doing anything.

Johnson, in a news conference, made a veiled charge of obstructionism by the Republicans in the slow Senate action on the minimum wage bill. With obvious sarcasm, he said he "would not suspect any of my colleagues of seeking to prolong the session unduly."

Then he added, "The American people are well aware of the realities and will be fully competent of deciding for themselves whether there was an effort to keep Congress in session" for an unreasonable time in order to delay the campaign.

Nixon To Dixie

While the Democrats held center stage in the Senate, the Republican nominee, Vice President Richard M. Nixon planned a sortie into the South—perhaps encouraged in his vote-seeking by the increasing points of collision between Kennedy and senators from traditionally Democratic Dixie.

Nixon is scheduled for a speech Wednesday at Greensboro, N.C. and Sen. Thurston B. Morton, the Republican national chairman from Kentucky is urging him to make flying trips soon to Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Virginia—states where there has been much vocal dissatisfaction with the Democrats' civil rights plank.

Nixon's press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, said at a news conference Monday Nixon is pushing for passage at this session of a two-point civil rights bill asked by President Eisenhower even though the Senate rejected it overwhelmingly last week.

Eisenhower asked for financial aid for school districts voluntarily desegregating schools and for a federal commission to end racial discrimination on government-financed projects.

Northern and Southern Democrats closed ranks to kill this move through a tabling motion. It was explained this was done so a filibuster would not block action on other major bills at the bottled session.

Negroes Dissatisfied

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said Sunday this Kennedy-Johnson explanation "does not sit so well" with Negroes.

In an interlude in the minimum wage debate, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said in the Senate Nixon is trying to disassociate himself from the farm policies of Eisenhower and Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson. He told the Republicans "You'd like to forget Mr. Benson. But, gentlemen, you're stuck with him."

This touched off a political fight and take with Republicans reminding Humphrey he'd criticized Kennedy's farm record when the two were battling each other for the Democratic nomination. Humphrey admitted the criticism but said Kennedy's farm record is far better than Nixon's.

Dag, Lumumba Clash; Ask White Withdrawal

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo

(AP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold left for New York by plane Monday night to put difficulties newly raised by Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba before the United Nations Security Council. He declined to wait for a Congolese delegation that sought to fly to New York with him.

Lumumba had asked Ham-mar to delay his departure 24 hours to take a delegation of four Congolese ministers along to appear in the Council.

In a letter to Lumumba, the secretary-general said that he did not see the advantage of this since the Security Council would not meet before the arrival of the Congolese delegation in any case.

In New York the U.N. announced Hammarskjold had asked Ambassador Armand Berard of France, president of the Security Council for Tuesday, to call the 11-nation Security Council into session to deal with the new problems. He asked that Berard fix the date so that the Congolese delegation would have time to get to New York. It was indicated that no meeting would be held before Wednesday and that it might be set for Thursday.

Hammarskjold decided to consult the Security Council after Lumumba in a bitter series of three letters announced he no longer had confidence in the secretary-general.

Shortly before Hammarskjold left his Leopoldville apartment, vice Premier Antoine Gizenga telephoned and asked what time his plane was going. Gizenga said the Congolese delegation wanted to go with him.

Hammarskjold was escorted to the airport by a guard of Ghana police from the U.N. Congo force.

The secretary-general is flying by U.N. plane to Paris where he will board a commercial plane for Leopoldville. Hammarskjold sent a letter to Congo President Joseph Kasavubu expressing regrets he had been unable to see him and saying that certain misunderstandings had arisen.

Kasavubu spent the day in the Congo as the guest of Premier Fulbert Youlou. Lumumba pointed out was not invited to the independence celebration across the river.

The cocksure Lumumba clashed openly and bitterly with Hammarskjold Monday and in a declaration asked that an African-Asian observer group take over the delicate task in place of Hammarskjold.

The declaration came in an exchange of letters as multiracial U.N. forces, pledged to political neutrality, moved by air and rail to reinforce Swedish U.N. detachments in secessionist Katanga province.

The neutrality, irritating to Lumumba, was demonstrated during street demonstrations Monday in Elisabethville, Katanga's capital, against the independence-minded provincial Premier Moise Tshombe.

Hercules destroyed a Corporal ballistic missile in flight earlier this summer at White Sands in the first interception of its kind.

Area Planning Idea Explored At Meeting Here

By Jeffrey Cox

"THIS area will become the hub from Chicago to Miami, said a group of Pittsburgh engineers commenting on Monroe County some time ago," Herman Smeltz, member of the East Stroudsburg Planning Commission noted at a commission meeting last night.

For this reason, Smeltz added, regional planning is necessary. The remarks were made when the representative from Smithfield Township was being asked to join in a proposed Regional Planning Commission.

The meeting last night centered on the bringing together of five area boroughs and townships to get a Regional Planning Commission going.

The East Stroudsburg commission voted at the meeting to look further into regional planning, and Smithfield Township said they would do likewise.

Michael Cabot, representing Candeb, Cabot and Associates, city planning consultants of Scranton, said he hoped to interest Stroud, Delaware Water Gap and ultimately Stroudsburg in the regional commission.

Cabot recommended that a letter be sent to the State Department of Commerce saying every effort has been made to bring about a Regional Planning Commission. He said an application for federal funds for city planning assistance has been sent.

Federal Aid Pledged

As far as planning assistance goes, these funds being different than those for a Regional Planning Commission, Louis Lex, Jr., regional supervisor of planning of the State Bureau of Community Development said that East Stroudsburg is on the top of the list for federal assistance.

Lex noted that the application should be approved in three or four months. Delays are due to the waiting period necessary until 30 or 40 applications from different communities are accumulated and sent to a division of the Federal Housing Administration.

Lex said that the federal government would assume about 50 percent of the cost of a Regional Planning Commission if all the five area groups joined in setting one up.

Smithfield Township was then asked to join East Stroudsburg in forming a rudimentary group. Smithfield representatives declined to do so at the present time due to costs. A spokesman for Smithfield said that the township was interested but that they must go slow because of funds.

Commission chairman Ralph Burrows said that East Stroudsburg doesn't want to close the door on its neighbors and in the future would like to discuss planning with all of them.

Planning Example

Cabot said that the best way to bring the area groups into a joint planning commission would be to make East Stroudsburg an example of good planning. "The others could then see and follow," he added.

Speaking on urban renewal and redevelopment, Cabot noted that three areas of East Stroudsburg have been studied.

The central shopping area and two areas in flood control projects are the areas studied for redevelopment and renewal plans.

The planning commission was authorized to prepare studies to select the best project, at which time an application would be made to the federal government for funds.

Cabot said that East Stroudsburg was in a wonderful position to receive credit.

In urban renewal, two-thirds of the money would come from the federal government, and one-third would come from the borough, of which one half, or one-sixth of the total money, would be assumed by the state.

"The object here is to find the project with the minimum cost for the most community gain," Cabot explained.

The flight did not constitute aggression, Beresford said, since the U-2 was unarmed and its activities "were intended to provide against the possibility of surprise attack by others."

Beresford is special counsel to the House Space Committee. He said the opinion he expressed was personal, not official.

He said there is good reason to challenge the contentions that the U-2 flights were, under international law, invasions of Soviet airspace, or espionage or aggression. The question of Soviet domestic law is irrelevant, to this discussion, he argued, since there is no applicable agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union and no sovereign country is bound by the internal laws of another.

Beresford based part of his argument on the acceptance by various countries of satellite orbits in outer space above their territory.

The U-2, Beresford said, while not a satellite, operates at altitudes approximating some of the conditions of space — certainly above the limits at which humans could survive without special equipment.

He said the bounds of sovereignty are sometimes set by the limits of effective control and "the Soviet Union itself appears to have accepted effective control as the limit of its three dimensional sovereignty, by not objecting to the earlier U-2 flights."

If it is true that the U-2 descended into Soviet airspace unintentionally because of a flame-out or similar mishap, Beresford said, "then surely the controlling provisions are those that permit an aircraft to enter foreign territory in case of distress."

Democrat Urges $10 Billion For Latin America

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 600-million-dollar plan of aid for Latin America by the administration was countered Monday by a Democratic proposal to make it 10 billion.

The counterproposal came from Sen. Frank Church of Idaho. Church proposed the larger program—to run for 5 to 10 years—during an appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by Undersecretary of State Douglas Dillon.

"If the United States is really serious," Church said, "we need a great deal more money."

Dillon was given a generally favorable reception by the committee; several of its members have been arguing for a long-range program aimed at helping Latin-Americans help their own development.

In asking the authorization of 600 million dollars, Dillon said development work is needed to meet the threat that American democracies may be overthrown by frustrated and restless citizens hoping for a better life.

He said studies leading to the request were undertaken before the Cuban crisis.

"Certain governments in Latin America see in Cuba the need to take action to avoid similar violent problems. Cuba provides a picture of what happens when social progress does not keep pace with economic development," he added.

Dillon stipulated that for economic development to continue successfully, the countries being aided would have to stabilize their economies and modernize their tax systems.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont) was among those praising Dillon's presentation of the case for Latin-American aid. "It sounds good," Mansfield said. "We ought to call it 'The Dillon Declaration.'"

He contended the U-2 lights "were not clandestine—unless something is wrong with Soviet radar. Nor were they made under false pretenses." Moreover, he said, despite domestic law, "espionage has long been tolerated under customary international law."

'Hats Off' To Nurses For Fine Job

"I'M HEARTSICK at seeing the awfulness . . . of struggling to keep back tears when I much prefer to weep, of hours on duty with no time to rest or sleep.

"And yet for all its hardships, the care and strain on nerves, there's so much satisfaction in knowing I can serve, these unfortunate sufferers tortured by ill-health in all the different walks of life, from poverty to wealth."

These poetic lines are from a piece entitled: "Recompense."

It was submitted to The Daily Record by Mrs. John R. Harnett, of 311 Oakwood Ave., Stroudsburg, and a registered nurse who has fulfilled many hours of what the preceding paragraphs and remainder of the poem outlines.

Published in 1930

The article itself was copied from a nurses' magazine published about 1930. It was appropriate then and it is appropriate today because nurses and sickness will be with us for all time.

This is the seventh and concluding installment in this series on various modes of registered nurses' caps. All the photographs were taken at Monroe County General Hospital, East Stroudsburg, by Roderick G. MacLeod, chief photographer for The Daily Record.

Because of the great task involved in compiling the series, it's possible we have inadvertently overlooked some nurses.

Where such cases exist, notify The Daily Record and we'll be happy to comply and publish those registered nurses pictures missed.

Perhaps a good parting remark in tribute to these gallant women is "hats off for duty well performed."

Early American Paintings Displayed At Art Center

THE POCONO Art Center is presenting an exhibition of early American portraits and still life, as part of the celebration to honor the founding of Stroudsburg in 1810.

These paintings are part of the private collection of Ralph Meyer, Delaware Water Gap, who has acquired these during 20 years of search for examples of early portraits from various parts of America.

The earliest example is oil on cardboard painted around 1770. This is a rare sample of the primitive artist who stated in the simplest terms with awkward but strong strokes, the character of the man and wife.

Two drawings framed in original buried wood are drawn with mellow strokes and the sensitive line in the accurate profiles is reminiscent of Holbein and Durer in its simplicity and skill. These are dated 1830 and signed Robert Seavers, Delaware.

The largest portraits, oil on canvas, reveal the ability of the early artist not only to paint accurately, but to portray the mood of each personality. The dress and hair style in these indicate the date of 1830 as accurate. However, two smaller portraits, oil on wood, although dated 1820 the costume of the woman is much earlier.

Portrait of a young man, dated 1814, is perhaps the outstanding painting in the show. This achieves stature both as a painting competent in its color and skillful in its character analysis.

The flesh tones, texture and treatment of fabric and hair show that the painter, Ethan Allan Greenwood was a man of first rank in this period of American painting. Greenwood was active in organizing both the Harvard and Boston Museums and is accredited with painting over 40 portraits before he was 25.

is rewarding in its fresh color and the stiple effect of brushwork. This was painted in 1820 and is an interesting example of the method of painting which flourished in the Impressionists, later in the century.

The architectural interior and blue drapery act as a quiet backdrop for the vivid color in the melons and fruits. This painting is one of the finest American still life paintings to be seen anywhere.

The exhibition is open from 2-4 p.m. everyday at the Pocono Art Center Workshop, Brown and Braeside, East Stroudsburg. It closes Saturday.

PUC Hearings For Airlines

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Public Utility Commission has set Sept. 6-7 for hearings in Harrisburg on proposals by five major airlines to raise fares for flights inside Pennsylvania.

The increase would boost fares inside the state 10 to 20 percent, the commission said, based on a formula supplied by the U. S. Civil Aeronautics Board.

The boosts have been suspended until Jan. 24, pending hearings.

The airlines involved are Trans World; Eastern; Capitol; Allegheny, and United.

Higher fares for interstate flights were authorized by the CAB, effective July 1.

Recompense (Poetic Tribute To Nurses)

AT times I'm oh! so weary of people's moans and tears, of little children crying and their mother's fears, of wan and pinched white faces, lined brows and furrowed cheeks, the marks left there by suffering of days, or years, or weeks.

I'm so tired of burns and broken limbs, infected eye and hands, and fractured skulls and plaster coats and doctor's quick commands, of operations large and small and anesthetics too, and medicines and treatment—for all the good they do!

I'm tired of wounds and dressings, of gauze and tubes and pins, absorbent cotton by the roll or sterilized in tins, the needless chain of baths and rubs, massage and sunlight rays, of changing sheets and pillows and carrying heavy trays.

I'm tired of making eggnogs and creaming things on toast, to try and coax back appetites that sick folks may have lost, of taking temperatures and pulse, and charting each detail, and doing it directly for fear my memory fail.

I'm tired of neurasthenics with imaginary ills, their mania for cigarettes and craving for "more pills," of alcoholic victims with their vile and evil words, their ravings in delirium about wild beasts and birds.

I'm heartsick at seeing the awfulness of seeing people die, of struggling to keep back tears when I much prefer to weep, of hours on duty with no time to rest or sleep.

And yet for all its hardships, the care and strain on nerve, there's so much satisfaction in knowing I can serve, these poor unfortunate sufferers tortured by ill-health, in all the different walks of life, from poverty to wealth.

That I'm sure if I were offered a chance to choose once more, between this life and others I'd choose just as before. For I know that every deed done, in His Holy Name, is written by an Angel in the Heavenly Book of Fame.

The world at your fingertip

With just one finger you can instantly command the services of countless specialists . . . operators, switchmen, engineers . . . and the biggest and most complex communications network in the world.

A tremendous investment in plant and equipment awaits your individual wish. It costs little to use, but its value is almost impossible to measure. This value is constantly increasing as a direct result of sound management and an organization of men and women alert for opportunities to utilize the findings of research to improve the service and to help hold down costs.

Examples of such progress in the art of communications include Direct Distance Dialing; faster, more trouble-free service; ever-improving standards of clarity; fewer storm-caused service interruptions.

Moreover, improvements like these—and there are more to come—stand as eloquent evidence that your telephone is now and will continue to be one of the biggest values in your household or business budget.

Loaded Truck Overtakes At Water Gap

DELAWARE WATER GAP—A tractor-trailer loaded with 14 tons of electrical equipment tipped over on a ramp leading from Route 611 to Route 402 here at 4:40 a.m. yesterday.

Police Chief Fred Decker identified the driver as Raymond J. Jackson, 25, Endicott, N.Y., RD 1. The rig was owned by Associated Transport and was en route to New York City.

Decker said Jackson complained of stiffness of the arms and legs after the accident, but did not require medical attention. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,000.

Decker quoted Jackson as saying he evaded his vehicle to avoid a car in the eastbound ramp and was unable to get it back on the highway before it tipped over.

Cars Pass Boys Injured In Accident

THREE BADLY hurt and bleeding boys watched passing cars ignore them Saturday, according to one of the boys' father, after the car in which they were riding crashed.

The accident occurred Saturday about 9 p. m. on a desolate stretch of Route 402 in Pike County. Ronald Smith, 16, of Hunter's Range, driving a new station wagon, said something went wrong with the steering.

The other occupants, John Place III, 18, of East Stroudsburg RD 1, and John Morrow Jr., 16, of Resica Heights, were in the car when it left the highway and crashed into trees.

Injuries Listed
Morrow is confined to bed with a broken breastbone. Place is listed in fair condition in the Monroe County General Hospital with a broken neck and back, and Smith has a broken collarbone.

According to Morrow's father, John Morrow, "a lot of people passed by the wreck and ignored the boys. They were bleeding pretty badly. They could have died."

"My son," Morrow added, "can't understand why anyone would pass by a hurt human being without stopping."

An unidentified couple from Bethlehem finally stopped and brought the boys to the hospital. State police are still investigating the crash. The station wagon was demolished.

"I have asked them for their copy of the improvement report and they tell me they did not make one out. There is nothing I can do except follow the manual adopted by the county to use for tax purposes."

Commissioner Willard Quick said, "I doubt if the property owners realize that when they fail to comply with the improvement report requirements that the law allows us to collect taxes going back three years from the date of our findings."

"I would imagine that when this happens there are many taxpayers in the county who will be very hard hit."

In other action taken by the board at its meeting yesterday $6,318 was awarded to Stroud Township as county aid.

Monroe County Created By Legislature In 1836

By Dr. Robert Brown

DURING the 1820s the population north of the Blue Mountain had become so numerous and, if we may call it so, so progressive that the people began to talk about the advisability of creating a new county. It was argued and with reason that no section could prosper when located so far from the seat of justice.

It required a full day to drive to either Easton or Milford and another day to return. The time thus spent and the cost of such trips worked great hardship upon the people of this region.

As might have been expected, the attempt to create a new county aroused indignation and resentment. Northampton and Pike counties would not meekly submit to being deprived of so valuable a section.

Daniel Stroud was head of a committee whose duty it was to take all proper steps to secure from the Legislature an act forming the new county. In 1831 there were 12 petitions for and 14 remonstrances against the proposition.

It was proposed that the new county should be called Fulton or Evergreen. The latter name would be very appropriate for our county today. In 1836 the petitions had become so numerous that they could not be neglected.

The Legislature passed a resolution, approved April 1, 1836, creating the new county and calling it Monroe in honor of President Monroe. When Stroudsburg was chosen to be the county seat Daniel Stroud, J. Stroud, Hollinshead and Stogsdell Stokes donated the land for the necessary county buildings and erected them at no cost to the county.

Although very strict in carrying out his own convictions Daniel Stroud was not at all bigoted. He desired that all denominations should have their proper place in the borough. Most of the people were Methodists or Presbyterians and to both sects he donated land on which to erect churches.

He gave the Presbyterians a lot which is now 806-8 Sarah St. and to the Methodists 20-22 N. Eighth St. His own sect received the west side of S. Eighth St. from Main to Ann on which a meeting house was soon erected.

The police chief said the firm has built and will open tomorrow a foot bridge to provide pedestrians with access to the Day St. flats area.

All Eyes On Senate

If every dog has his day, as the folks saying goes, then this is the day of the U.S. Senate.

Never before in its history has this body enjoyed the eminence in national politics that it commands at this hour.

Called back into session following the national conventions, it has become the stage on which moves five of the six major figures in the forthcoming presidential campaign.

Vice President Nixon, GOP presidential nominee, is there as its presiding officer. Senator Kennedy, Democratic nominee, sits on the majority's side of the aisle and his running mate, Senator Johnson, wields the power of majority leader.

There, too, are to be found the national chairmen of both parties—Senator Thruston B. Morton for the Republicans, and Senator Henry M. Jackson for the Democrats.

Only Henry Cabot Lodge, GOP vice presidential nominee, is absent and he has the United Nations as his forum.

With such a concentration of star performers, the Senate should produce big scenes in the 1960 presidential drama.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Price And The Status Symbol

Anyone with lingering doubts on the position of the house as status symbol will want to consider the bold and successful move of a Baltimore real estate man.

Some time ago he built a group of homes, priced them at $11,000 and advertised them in a conventional manner. They didn't sell well at all.

Then he read a book on social climbing and decided to change his tactics. He described his product as just right for junior executives and jacked up the price to $13,500. Home seekers snapped them up.

This might prove only that there were a number of people who considered themselves junior executives looking for homes in Baltimore. It also demonstrates a merchandising rule of thumb that people have suspicions about the product a low price will buy.

But beyond that, the incident does bear out what a number of sociologists have been telling us—that the house has gained in prestige value what cars have been in the process of losing for several years.

Much of the attention that used to go to the sleek, chromed-up auto body now goes to the fully finished club basement. Where there was once an emphasis on tail fins, there is now the same kind of "must" value to the built-in oven and stove. Yesterday's wrap-around windshield is today's fireplace or breezeway.

Real estate developers can rejoice in the trend as long as it lasts. But the symbols of prestige won't remain fixed, as the designer of the Edsel may well testify. When they do ultimately shift to another area of the economy, someone is sure to be on the market with a fast-selling "economy home." He might even advertise it as "the thinking man's residence."

—Harrisburg Patriot

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Twisted Thinking

A correspondent writes on a sidewalk:

"Here is a phase of American life, a child sees his parents living in dark dingy rooms. The parents are doing their best. Then you read of all the (swells) with several homes something like yourself. I think this system is rotten; the same applies to many other things. What do you think?"

There is nothing rotten about the system. The writer of this card objects to anyone having more than he has. My father, I am sure, had as little or less.

He was a holy man whose earnings were limited by religious impediments. There were too many things he could not, in conscience, do, but which others, of different religions, could, in conscience do.

These limitations prevented our family from becoming wealthy, although we were, on the whole happy.

My father could have gone in for cloaks and suits or manufacturing pants or being a butcher. Many of those whom we knew in my childhood became enormously wealthy from such lowly beginnings. I knew of a tailor who became a banker and a butcher who became a chicken king.

In fact, my father lent the latter five dollars to start him in business had he become enormously rich out of that five dollars that my father lent him. How is another story.

But, in the end, his competitors bombed him because he used to undersell them by feeding the chickens gravel and water in New Jersey. My father was never bombed — perhaps because he never did very much.

Nevertheless, we all managed to live — there were nine of us in the family, including our parents. None of us ever became very wealthy, but we managed.

And if this reader objects to my owning a farm, in addition to living in a New York City tenement, I can only tell him that I have worked many years since I got my first Summer job at the age of 10 and have never found that the system interfered with my opportunities until recently, when the income tax began to take too much of my earnings.

Naturally, I do not know my correspondent and therefore do not know what psychological or physical impediments prevent him from making out. This is still the land of opportunity as anyone must know who works at it.

For instance, lots of folks make a fuss over Leonard Bernstein, but he was not born of the Rockefeller or Astors. His father was a small self-employed merchant in Lawrence outside of Boston and Bernstein achieved his enormous success by working hard and learning much.

Ahl My correspondent will probably say: "Bernstein has great talent but I am a common, ordinary person." Every man has some gift that God gave him. So many do not take advantage of their gifts or their opportunities.

Look at Richard Nixon, now running for President. His father was a small town grocer who had never done too well. Dick tended store and poured gasoline into automobiles and when I first met him I am sure that his suit came from one of those stores that give two pair of pants with each suit.

And now, he is a great man, Vice President of the United States. And there is a chance for the rich man, too, although there was a time in this country when if a man was not born in a log cabin he could not run for President. Our prejudice against the born rich has lessened. In this campaign year, Kennedy and Johnson are wealthy, and Henry Cabot Lodge comes of a family of great distinction and social prestige. The prejudice against the rich no longer excludes them from opportunity.

My correspondent is all wrong. This is still the land of great opportunity for those who work hard, who will build mind and character, who will take advantage of what is offered them.

The sorriest, the sorehead, the man who prefers his hates to his blessings, will, of course, get nowhere. That is reasonable.

If my correspondent should happen to be a Negro—I cannot, of course, tell—I can only call his attention to the fact that one of the greatest statesmen in the world today, recognized by every government for his merit and his achievements is Ralph Bunche, an American Negro who might one day be Secretary of State.

The Pennsylvania Story

Fact Or Fancy?

HARRISBURG — As the Fall campaign in Pennsylvania prepares to move into high gear one of the toughest nuts to crack for the state's five million-odd voters will center around the difficult task of separating the fact from fancy claims of partisan campaign toilers.

On the other hand to dyed-in-the-wool party followers on either side of the political fence — those who make up the closely-knit organization, or machine, of each party — the real facts as they stand are meaningless.

This vote already has been decided solely along party lines.

But as old polls reluctantly and ruefully admit, this very vote can no longer be considered the deciding factor in contemporary election campaigns. The independent voter today holds the key as never before which is the sole reason for the tremendous pitch made directly to the public in modern campaigns, and for that matter, in the everyday conduct of public office.

Pennsylvania's Governor Lawrence is an outstanding example of this approach. He undoubtedly has used the media of press, radio, television and public appearance more intensively than any preceding Chief Executive in an appeal not to the party warhorses or faithful — but to the mass of Independents neither party can control.

Paradoxically, Pennsylvania's last Republican Governor, John S. Fine, was so close mouthed and reluctant to take the public into his confidence that few outside his close official family had any idea what his administration was trying to accomplish.

Press conferences — a governor's one real means of getting across these points — were limited to less than a dozen during his entire administration.

Significantly perhaps, as Mr. Fine prepared to leave office, Republicans lost the gubernatorial election in 1954.

However within the scope of modern day public appeal, or appeal to the independent voter, there has developed an over-emphasis which tends to make it difficult to actually distinguish fact from what might be termed political fancy.

For example, in the field of legislation, the Lawrence Administration delights in referring to legislation enacted during its tenure as "its" legislative accomplishment.

To illustrate: In the 1959 legislative session the unemployment compensation law was amended to increase benefits for Pennsylvania's jobless workers. Similar legislation went through the legislative mill that year boosting workmen's compensation benefits.

Both of these legislative tidbits of course are "pro-labor" items and the Democratic Party in Pennsylvania delights in being referred to as the pro-labor party.

Undoubtedly this legislation has bettered the lot of labor in Pennsylvania — that point is not at issue — but to term it a "Democratic administration achievement" is not sticking to the actual facts. This is why:

In the past session of the Legislature the Lawrence Administration actually "achieved" nothing by itself. It could not for the simple reason that the Legislature was split — by a political fluke — with Republicans in control of the Senate even though administrative Democrats held the upper hand in the House.

Thus any single piece of legislation that successfully passed the Legislature had to receive Republican support — as well as Democratic support — which for that session at least eliminated any exclusive partisan claims of "achievements" for either party.

It is true the pro-labor legislation represented "goals" of the Democratic administration — but goals finally attained with bipartisan support.

In this campaign year the separation of fact from fancy is more important than ever!

The Allen-Scott Report

Waste Investigated

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington — July "wind-fall" profits are still being pocketed in the storing and export of those huge stocks of surplus farm products that are costing taxpayers billions of dollars.

Despite repeated jilting disclosures by House and Senate investigators of such boondoggling and worse, it continues unchecked.

That's what's behind the new series of public hearings contemplated by the House Government Operations Investigating Subcommittee headed by Rep. L. H. Fountain (D., N. C.). Under his forceful probing in the past several years, scores of instances of lucrative profiteering and outright illegalities have been uncovered.

Chiefly involved in this long scandal-ridden record are the Agriculture Department and the International Cooperation Administration, in charge of foreign economic aid.

Both will figure prominently in the new sensational exposures.

Significantly indicative of their nature are the findings of a report Rep. Fountain's committee is preparing for publication. It cites a long list of costly waste, incompetence and misdeeds in the handling and disposal of the government's multi-billion hoard of surplus farm commodities.

Highlights of this record are:

"An extremely high percentage of foreign aid funds are being paid to a small number of very large firms. During a 3 1/2 year period, the Continental Grain Company, N. Y., and two of its subsidiaries, received more than $166 million in these firms received a total of more than $318 million, and 20 firms received more than $888 million."

"Although ICA described these and other firms receiving such funds as 'U. S. firms' many of them are actually owned or controlled by foreign interests. ICA officials admitted that its test for a 'U. S. firm' (whether or not the firm has an office in the U. S.) is a definition broad enough to take in almost everyone, including the official Russian Government Trading Agency."

"ICA pays out dollars to the exporters, and the importer pays foreign currency at an agreed exchange rate. These agreed exchange rates have often been unrealistic and much more favorable than the free market exchange rate . . . This opens the way for substantial profits through converting foreign currency into dollars at ICA's expense."

"ICA has given banks authority to pay out millions of dollars on its behalf, but has absolved the banks from responsibility, in some cases even where payments were made on the basis of incomplete or irregular documents. ICA usually does not examine a transaction until months after payments are made."

"Many transactions were never given any price review, and there is little evidence that an adequate sampling procedure was used to select transactions that were analyzed. Although ICA spends an average of well over $100 million a year to finance agricultural commodity transactions, it had only one person assigned full-time to carry out price reviews."

Singled out as a graphic example of this negligence is an ICA-financed exportation of thousands of tons of rice to French West Africa.

"ICA paid for this rice at around $58 a ton, even though it had been purchased from the Commodity Credit Corp. (an agency of the Agriculture Department) for only $38 a ton."

"Liaison between ICA and CCC appears inadequate to inform ICA on particular transactions, whether the finance commodities come from CCC stocks and, if so, the price at which sold by CCC."

"The declared policy of ICA is to obtain a refund from the exporter in the event of overpricing, and to require a refund by the country concerned only where ICA cannot collect from the exporter. However, it appears that in a number of instances ICA has made no attempt to collect from the exporter and has reprogrammed funds recovered from countries, with the result that ICA has spent the same amount of dollars, the transaction is wiped off ICA books, and the exporter retains his illegal profits."

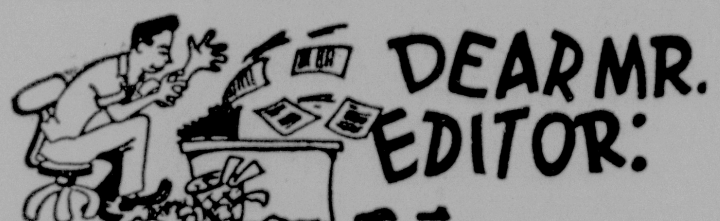

More of the Same — The Commodity Credit Corp., which spends billions annually for farm surpluses, is also blasted on a number of charges.

It, too, is assailed for waste, incompetence and other failings running into hundreds of millions of taxpayers' money. Rep. Fountain bluntly declared that the "basic weakness is the apparent failure of responsible officials of the Agriculture Department to appreciate the value of a dollar and to take ordinary common sense precautions in spending the federal funds."

Appreciative Nurse

Mr. Rod MacLeod Daily Record

Dear Mr. MacLeod:

I want to thank you for portraying in your paper the symbol of what every true nurse works for, her cap.

Your statement in today's paper that the patients are passing their time guessing from what school their favorite nurse graduated from is as interesting as what has happened to me.

I have been the industrial nurse at Line Material for the past 13 1/2 years and have never worked without my cap.

Now, every day at least six to ten employees come in and say "Oh look, she has one of those nurse's caps too." Apparently much to my dismay they never looked at me before, or possibly it is more the power of suggestion which you have instilled in them.

Bravo, for a job well done. We too like to get a little recognition once in awhile, it helps our ego and then too we are instilled to do a better job. From all the comments I hear you have certainly brought it to the public's attention what the registered nurse works and stands for, service to humanity.

For the first time in its history, the 80,000-member Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women will actively engage in campaign work as a unit, with Mrs. Meade D. Detweiler, Jr., of Harrisburg, as campaign chairman.

The council declares that its intention is not to interfere with or in any way supersede GOP state or county officials but rather to supplement their effort, and to corral its woman power into a well knit organization to work for victory. It further declares that it is convinced that the time has come when every segment of the Republican party must unite harmoniously in an all out effort to ensure victory in November.

Already the council has formed committees which are the beginning of a working organization which will function from the state level right down to the precinct level.

On the executive campaign committee are Mrs. Detweiler, Jr., first vice president of the council, chairman; Mrs. Nolan P. Benner, Jr., Allentown, assistant chairman; Mrs. Eugene P. ## The Wyckoff Shopper

There is no trace of Autumn in the air these fine, sunny days—but it is definitely "in the wind," as one can see by looking over our Wyckoff merchandise. Newly arrived and freshly tickled, it beckons from the racks and arrives from the display cases, and acts as a spur to direct everyone's interest Back to School ... Back to Clubs ... back to more formal and more active living.

Lounging around in shorts, slacks, or bathing suit, is fine for a while. So are picnics, barbecues, and camp-outs. But along about now, when the last trace of white finish has been cleaned away from the leather shoes; when the cottons are looking a bit tired and limp, and when even the children admit that they're anxious to renew classroom friendships, those beautiful violet beaver hats in Maude Walton's department look mighty tempting and so do the transitional cotton dresses, the darker, woolier coordinates, and the handsome tapestry and leather bags on our Wyckoff accessories counter.

I haven't tried on any of Maudie's new fall hats—they're just too scrumptious and appealing. But maybe you have—and maybe you've already purchased one. I can only say they're here—and a delight to the eye. As for my next purchase, it will have to be a dark cotton or two. I noticed several in our entrance window by Karen Kane and Coquette, priced, I believe, at only 5.98. One was a cotton sheer in a dull green print. The others were red—and one tiny red and black check with brass buttons. Five ninety eight is just about all many of us will have left to spend on ourselves after buying the children's Back to School clothes—and I'm relieved to know, as you may be, that Wyckoff's budget dress department can offer so much for so little.

About a week ago the switchboard operator informed me that Mr. Wyckoff would like me to come to the receiving room. When I arrived there, I found Arthur Widmer, head of our advertising department ... Mr. President (Holt Wyckoff) ... Doris Hinton, head of our Wyckoff jewelry department ... and several other persons, already assembled. Later Peter Wyckoff joined us.

In the center of the floor was a huge box from which long, heavy socks with interestingly patterned cuffs, spilled. Other boxes were filled with pullover sweaters of a thickness and bulk I had never seen before ... skirts of alpaca, as smart as they would be warm ... and FURS. As a matter of fact, Doris was having a glorious time trying first this and then that style in a brown and white fur that had been shaped in various ways to create unusual headgear for a lady. There were fur headbands too, with ties, that also double as a collar—a pleasing accessory for the young girl. Then there were several large woven squares, of an Indian type pattern, that could be used as a rug or a blanket.

On a table against the wall were scarfs in all the hues of the rainbow for children ... and ski helmets for adults. Pete tried one on, and even though I knew it was he it terrified me. It was of heavy yarn with slits for the eyes, nostrils and lips—wonderful for Hal-lowe'en, skiing, or scaring your Aunt Matilda to death!

Mr. Wyckoff told me he had purchased all this from an importer who does business with only the finest and largest stores—Nieman Marcus, for instance, and Saks Fifth Avenue. All of this merchandise comes from Peru and Bolivia, and is much in favor with the wealthy clientele of those exclusive stores I've mentioned. It would be perfect on the ski slopes of Switzerland—or the Poconos. Fine too for the school youngster with a long, cold walk of a winter morning. Just when we will have it all ticketed and on display, I can't say. But it's a unique and interesting collection. Watch for it!

Barbara Smith Becomes Bride Of Robert Kassner

The East Stroudsburg Methodist Church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Barbara Albee Smith to Mr. Robert Edward Kassner on August 7 at 2 o'clock. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Harold C. Eaton.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Larry, wore a gown of Chantilly lace over net and silk with a scalloped neckline and hem with three-quarter length sleeves. Her fingertip veil of French silk illusion fell from a crown of white velvet and rhinestones. She carried a cascade of white gardenias and ivy.

Miss Carol Smith was maid of honor. She wore a street length dress of lilac chiffon over a white and lilac pattern dress with matching white bow headpiece with lilac net. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white carnations with matching bow and netting.

Miss Patricia Beards, was bridesmaid. She wore a yellow chiffon street length dress with a white bow headpiece and matching yellow net. She carried a bouquet of lilac and white carnations with matching ribbon and netting.

Robert Kish was best man.

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

Rome — One of the reasons it was good to get home from Naples was to have reference books to fill in gaps we had discovered in our combined store of knowledge. There was a crop, for instance, which none of us could identify. Field after field was filled with a harvest of what we at first took to be bamboo poles, all the same length, about ten feet tall, whitely yellow without leaves or branches, tied in bundles and then stacked into teepees.

But the poles were smooth, without the joints that mark bamboo. Besides, the bamboo which grows wild along the roadsides has sort of corn-like long leaves and in the unharvested fields we could see that these plants had sort of feathery leaves. To increase the mystery, each field had a sort of a cellar-hole filled with water which weren't likely swimming pools and were too numerous to be foundations of burned-out houses.

But if they weren't bamboo, what were they? Straw? But who ever heard of straw ten feet tall? Even with the encyclopedia at hand we had quite a treasure hunt before we found out what it was. We finally got the clue by looking under Italian Exports which listed hemp, which was something none of us had ever seen and about which we all had our own idea, ranging from some kind of tree bark to spongy roots. Looking it up, we discovered that our poles were hemp sure enough—feathery leaves and all, and the swimming pools were for "rotting" (oh cross-word puzzle days) off the leaves and outer bark.

Hemp, you may also be interested to learn is also, through a substance in its leaves and flowers, a source of hushish, so I'm glad we didn't try swimming in those "swimming pools." Well, we live and learn. I didn't feel too badly about not recognizing hemp, but I did feel a qualm about not remembering more about Cassino. That was one of the towns on our route, and both Shirley and I are old enough to remember something about the Siege of Cassino during the Second World War.

Shirley remembered better than I did about the retreating Germans entrenching themselves after the surrender of Italy and the landing of Allied Forces at Salerno in a sixteenth-century monastery above Cassino and withstanding the combined assault of Army and Air Force for six months. But beyond that we were awfully vague. There was nothing in Cassino to refresh our memories. A small town of small, new apartment houses with a modern flat plant in the center where buses were picking up the night shift while we had coffee and ice cream on the square. In the blinding glare of the setting sun, the abbey looked so light on the heights overhead. Across the square, to be sure, was a section of an old stone wall with fragments of arches that looked as if it might have been a church. But there were no half-demolished buildings, no cellar holes as there are in Naples.

We could appreciate why only after we got home and looked up the Battle of Cassino and its accompanying pictures in Life's Picture History of World War II. Of Cassino itself, one stone was hardly left standing upon another after the attacks of February and March 1944. In one attack alone 338 heavy bombers and 176 mediums with 1,100 tons of bombs and the artillery with 195,969 rounds of ammunition failed to dislodge the German garrison which lasted until May and only gave up then because their supply line was finally severed.

No wonder the buildings are

Twin City May Miss California

TWIN CITY TV, which earned the right to take part in the International Softball Congress Tournament at Long Beach, Cal., in two weeks, by winning the State Major Title, may not make the trip.

It costs more than $4,000 to finance the trip and money is not available.

After Twin City won the State title last year a fund-raising drive was successfully held to raise the trip money. But this year the Twin City players and manager Ray Davies, along with Twin City Television owner, Ernie Fellencer, are reluctant to ask for contributions.

"We don't want to beg for the money," says Fellencer, and "before we do that, we'll call off the trip."

Not Looking For Easy Buck

Fellencer is not looking for an easy buck so that he can advertise his business. Last year he even entered the team in California under the name Twin City Poconos, so that this area could get the publicity rather than his business.

Twin City was eliminated in two straight games in California and there were still are rumblings in the Stroudsburgs that the club "had no business in the tournament."

But Twin City was forced to play its opening game after the players had only three hours sleep, because of travel delays and the club did not know that it could have picked up several more players to strengthen its roster.

Most of the teams that played in California were sponsored by million dollar industries. The ball players, while not actually receiving pay for playing softball, were being paid high salaries for holding down plumb jobs.

Similar To Indy Hoop League

The set-up is similar to the teams in the National Industrial Basketball League, which vie with the pros for top college players.

Curt's favorite, the St. Louis Hawks center, spent several years in the NIBL, before the pros could lure him away.

Volpi Builders of Philadelphia rolled into Stroudsburg for the State Tourney with a $5,000 check in its possession for the trip to the Coast.

But the Builders had to clear a hurdle bigger than the money barrier and they stumbled.

Volpi, which had lost a benefit double-header to Twin City early in July, was eliminated from the tourney after losses to Twin City and Philadelphia VFW.

Fellencer says he still has a "few irons in the fire" that he hopes will help raise the money but the irons grow colder and the time shorter.

Keystone Amateur Softball Assn. officials, sponsor of the state tournament, want a "yes" or "no" answer by Wednesday and unless a sugar daddy, with a strong interest in softball comes on the scene, Twin City will stay in the Poconos.

Frowns On Rough House

Never Tried To Hit A Batter Says Pirate's Vernon Law

By GIB STAYEY

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Vernon Law, the ace pitcher of the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates, said Monday he has "never tried to hit a batter in my life and I never will."

"I won't play rough house baseball," Law said as he rested at his suburban home with his wife and four children. I want to be a credit to baseball and to myself and family."

Law, a 30-year-old right-hander, appears headed for his best season in the National League. He has won 17 games, tops in the majors, and lost five.

Law, a great control pitcher, has given up only 30 bases on balls in 208 1/3 innings and several of them have been intentional.

Not Bothered

"I know the batters dig in when I pitch but that does not bother me," Law declared. "I depend upon my control and if my control isn't good enough that is too bad. I simply will not throw intentionally at a batter. That does not mean I will not brush back a batter. I will throw to a batter close but I won't try to hit him."

"I have been hit a few times, myself, and I know how it feels."

Once, a few years ago, I got hit in the head and I suffered a ruptured ear drum."

Law, a deacon in the Mormon Church and an athlete who does not drink alcoholic beverages or smoke, is a 6-foot-3, 200-pounder always in top condition. He has started 26 games and finished 15 to compile an 8.31 earned run average. He has struck out 92.

Law said he "wasn't as sharp as I would have liked" Sunday in beating St. Louis 9-4 in the first game of a doubleheader.

No Rest

"I've been pitching on four days' rest and every now and then I like to get five days off. But that has been impossible with our schedule because we have had some doubleheaders."

Law is almost certain to win about 10 more games. He had his best year in 1959 with an 18-9 record.

"Every pitcher wants to win 20 but it all depends on a lot of things," Law said. "One thing, though, I won't be throwing at the hitters. Lots of times I have seen pitchers throw at a batter, get behind in the ball and strike count and then blow up. Often those pitchers are taking a show-er while I'm still on the mound."

Playoff Game Booked Today

FIRST Stroudsburg National Bank meets Wyckoff-Sears in a one game playoff for the second half title of the Stroudsburg Little League tonight at 8 p.m.

The two clubs ended in a deadlock for the crown af-

NEW YORK (AP) — The transaction in which they obtained Roy Sievers from Washington last April may turn out to be the best deal the Chicago White Sox ever made.

For $150,000 plus catcher Earl Battey and first baseman Don Mincher the Sox acquired the big guy who now is carrying the team's power load on his broad shoulders. Sievers leads the club in home runs with 23 and is second in runs batted in with 74. He collected 10 hits in 25 tries last week and boosted his average seven points to .319. As a result, he moved into second place in the American League, behind Al Smith who has .325.

In the National League, Norm Larker of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Willie Maya each slumped seven points, leaving Larker on top with a .339 mark and the San Francisco star in second place at .334.

ter all but three games in the second half were taken away from V. F. W.

The Vets, who won the first half, used an ineligible player, who did not live within the boundaries of the Stroudsburg Little League.

Paul, Heckman Win Glen Brook PGA Title

Rain Slows Field Of 31 Pros

BUDDY HECKMAN and Angelo Paul, tied for low pro honors in the Philadelphia Section, Professional Golfers' Assn. pro-am tournament at Glen Brook Country Club Monday, with three-under par 70s.

Heckman from Reading and Paul, who registers out of Meadowlands C. C., Doylestown, finished a stroke ahead of Bob Schoen-er, Jr., of Green Pond, Easton.

A heavy rain storm halted play for about 20 minutes and made the course play extremely long for the late finishers.

A triple-bogey six on the par-three 16th cost Henry Williams a possible tie for the title.

The Berkleigh Country Club pro, who was a semi-finalist in the 1950 National PGA Championship, few a seven-iron over the elevated green and was faced with an almost unplayable lie in the woody area between the green and the 17th tee. It took Williams' three more strokes to reach the green a two putts for the six.

Not Blanked

But Williams wasn't completely shut out. He and Bob Christman, Glen Brook amateur, won the team title with a seven-under par 66.

Christman posted a 79 on his ball in the non-handicap event and added five birds, to help his pro partner.

Paul and Armond Jacoby, along with Heckman and Bob Batdorff, tied for second in the pro-am division with 67s.

Batdorff, a Reading amateur and holder of the State Open title, won the amateur sweepstakes with a one-under 72.

CLOSE CHECK — Angelo Paul, (left) of Meadowlands C. C., Doylestown, checks his scorecard, while Glen Brook Country Club assistant pro Jim Bay, posts totals. Paul shot a three-under par 70 to tie Buddy Heckman for low pro honors in the Philadelphia Section, PGA pro-am. (Staff photo by Prins)

Roland Gartner, a June graduate from East Stroudsburg High School, was next in line with a 73 and blew a chance for the top spot, when he took a six on the 18th.

Hits Lake

Gartner was two under par going to the last hole but dumped his tee shot into a lake only 100 yards off the tee. He hit his next shot from the edge of the lake after taking a penalty stroke and knocked the ball out of bounds.

He was on the green in two more shots and got down in a single putt for the double-bogey.

Gartner and Shawnee In's teaching pro John Chimenti posted a bestball of 68 for the fourth place tie in the team standings.

Paul, who did not enter the extra-money pro sweepstakes, because he had not played the course before and felt he had no chance to win, played the 15th, 16th, and 17th in four-under par figures.

He birdied both the 15th and 16th and rolled in a 20-foot putt for an eagle on the 17th.

Cools Off

But a heavy rain storm

COOL OFF PARTNER — Golf professional Henry Williams pours a glass of ice water for amateur Bob Christman. The pair teamed for a best ball of 66 to win the pro-am division. Christman of Glen Brook, recorded five birdies on his way to a 79. Williams had an even-par 73. (Staff Photo by Prins) caught Paul at the 18th and after a lengthy delay, he cooled off and could manage only a bogey on the last whole, when he left his third shot well short of the pin on the four-par.

Chimenti and Walt Thiel, playing his best tournament round of the year, tied for fifth in the pro standings, with 74s.

Thiel, who has had trouble getting started this summer, missed several short putts, that cost him a sub-par round.

Host pro Sam Kinder, whose 65 in Philadelphia last week is the lowest pro round in the state this year, came down with the flu Sunday and played the tournament with a severe degree fever. He ended with a 76.

Nick Orendas, former Glen Brook assistant, who now works at Hopewell Valley C. C., New Jersey, posted an 80 and Mike Megargel, of Megargel Golf Courses had an 81.

Only about half the field was in when the rain struck, completely covering most of the greens, with several inches of water. Many of the golfers "picked up" rather than playing in the lightning.

Topping Gets Support In Fight To Keep L. A. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Topping of the New York Yankees has been rallying support from fellow American League club owners in his fight to expand the league into Los Angeles, it was learned Monday.

At least two club owners, as well as Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick, share Topping's sentiments that Los Angeles, now officially regarded as closed territory, should be opened to the American League? The AL clubs behind Topping are Chicago and Cleveland.

It is Frick's feeling that because New York is open territory to the National League, it must Los Angeles be free to join the American.

The commissioner made this statement in response to a direct question from Topping at the Yankees' Old Timers' dinner Satur-

Yank Somers Likes Role Of Underdog

ROME (AP) — Australia's fearsome twosome of Murray Rose and John Konrads and Japan's Tsuyoshi Yamanka are rated the favorites in the Olympic 400 and 1,500 meter free style swims. And that's fine with young Alan Somers of Indianapolis.

"The pressure is on them, not us," said the 19-year-old American leader in the 400 and 1,500. "We're going to be the wolves — the hunters instead of the hunted."

"It was the other way around for me in the United States. I was the man to beat and heat was on me. I can relax now and let the other guys worry."

Ones To Beat
"Rose and Yamanka are the ones to beat instead of Konrads on the basis of times right now. But George Breen, Somers' Indianapolis teammate and I are not scared. They can be taken. I think George and I can get under 17:20."

Indy Playoffs Open Tonight

In Rain-Soaked Ring

Yakenchek Wins Third Bout But On Close Decision

EDDIE YAKENCHEK, the "homing dairy farmer" from Mt. Bethel, won a three-round decision over Wilson Camada of Philadelphia in a Friends of Boxing show at Scranton last night.

It was the first time in three fights that the former East Stroudsburg High School footballer has not scored a knockout.

Camada was a last minute substitute for Mike Harrity, also of Philadelphia, who failed to put in an appearance.

Ring Soaked

A rain storm that soaked the outdoor ring after the second bout, forced Yakenchek to check his punches, so that he would not lose his footing but he still managed to dump the more experienced Negro in the first round for a no count knockdown.

Ex-heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, who has tabbed Yakenchek a championship material, was not in the amateur's corner as expected but sat close by at ringside.

He spoke briefly to Yakenchek before the fight and the two posed for pictures together. Marciano did not see Yakenchek after the fight and no future meetings were discussed.

Earlier Interest

Marciano had indicated earlier that he was interested in signing the Monroe County boxer to a professional contract. Yakenchek termed the win his "best fight."

"I had no trouble hitting him," said Yakenchek, "but the ring was so slippery that I couldn't get any leverage."

In Yakenchek's first fight last winter, he scored a knockout in five seconds of the first round. Because of a scarcity of opponents, he did not fight again until June, when he won on a third round KO.

One ringside observer said that he had seen Camada in at least 15 fights in the Philadelphia area.

Phils Defeat Pirates 4-3 For Mahaffey

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies edged the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 Monday night on a run-scoring double by pinch hitter Tony Gonzales in the ninth inning. The blow gave rookie Philadelphia pitcher Art Mahaffey his first major league victory against no defeats.

Gonzales' double scored Ruben Amaro from first after Amaro's attempted bunt sacrifice had failed to work and a runner was thrown out at second. Mahaffey pitched eight innings for the Phils, gave up nine hits, fanned five and walked five — one intentionally. He was lifted in the ninth for pinch hitter Gonzales.

The victory lifted the Phils out of the cellar above the idle Chicago Cubs.

Face Losses

The loss was charged to Pirate reliever Elroy Face, who twirled the last two frames.

"The Pirates' starting pitcher, southpaw Wilmer (Vinegar Bend)—Mizell, failed to get his sixth victory in a row."

Mizell, who had gone the distance in his four previous starts, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh after giving up three runs and seven hits. He was wild in the early innings, walking four and hitting a batter, but he was helped by a pair of double plays.

Coker Singles

Jim Coker singled home two runs for the Phils in the fourth after Pancho Herrera had walked and Bobby Gene Smith had doubled.

The Orioles who blew a 2-0 lead on Mantle's first home run in the fourth, off starter Jerry Walker, had broken the tie with Jackie Brandt's 11th home run.

Gable, Loren In New Film

IF EVER a picture seems made to order to give enjoyment to every type of moviegoer, it's Paramount's romantic comedy, "It Started in Naples," which opens tomorrow at the Grand Theatre. Produced by Melville Shavelson and Jack Rose in Technicolor, it stars Clark Gable, Sophia Loren and Vittorio De Sica and introduces a sensational young Italian boy, Marietto, along with handsome Paolo Carlini.

For those who like musicals, "It Started in Naples" boasts four new tunes, with the luscious Sophia Loren not only singing and dancing, but actually rock-'n'-rolling, accompanied by the Neapolitan answer to Elvis, guitar-playing Carlini.

For those who like poignant drama, the story told in the film revolves around a tug-of-war (or perhaps it's really a tug-of-love) for possession of Marietto, who plays the American Gable's orphaned nephew, being cared for by his "aunt," Sophia.

Gable wants to take the boy back to America but since he represents all Sophia has in the world, she is determined to keep him. For those who like being made-carpets-to-far-away places, it offers breathtaking views of the Isle of Capri as well as of Rome and Naples.

And for those who like romance, watching Gable and Loren, "It Started in Naples" should be the living end.

Movie Shot In Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS will never forget the time it celebrated New Year's Eve in February. It happened when the "Ocean's Eleven" company went to the fabulous Nevada playspot to shoot scenes for the Dorchester Production for Warner Bros. The Technicolor film comes Wednesday to the Sherman Theatre.

Time for most of the "Ocean's Eleven" scenes was supposed to be the week between Christmas and New Year and five of the plush Las Vegas hotels were decorated accordingly.

With four of the film's stars—Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis, Jr., and Peter Lawford—working in front of the Technicolor cameras in the daytime and appearing together on the stage at the Sands Hotel at night, the excitement and business in the gaming casinos brought festive holiday spirit to the Las Vegas Strip at a time which normally is the slowest period of the year.

Producers-director Lewis Milestone said he experienced less difficulty in filming the "Ocean's Eleven" scenes in Las Vegas than anywhere he has ever worked.

"The gamblers didn't care about anything but the table in front of them," Milestone explained. "We probably could have filmed an explosion 10 feet from the roulette wheel and the players wouldn't have noticed it."

Angie Dickinson, Richard Conte, Cesar Romero, Patricia Wynmore, Joey Bishop, A Kim Tammoff and Henry Silva also star in "Ocean's Eleven." Cameo guest appearances are made by Red Skelton and George Raft.

Lana Turner In New Role

BEAUTIFUL Lana Turner returned to the scene of her greatest screen triumph when she accepted producer Ross Hunter's offer to head an all-star cast in Universal-International's "Portrait in Black," set to open Wednesday night at the Pocomo Drive-In Theatre.

It was at that studio over a year ago that Miss Turner had starred in "Imitation of Life," a movie that was destined to become one of the most popular and highest-grossing in the studio's 44-year history. For Lana it represented the most rewarding performance of her entire career.

"Portrait in Black" is a modern-day suspense story set in San Francisco. Based on the Broadway play by Ivan Goff and Ben Roberts, it was adapted for the screen by the original authors.

Contrary to accepted Hollywood customs of presenting suspense dramas in black-and-white, low-key photography, "Portrait in Black" is a vivid presentation of lush, expensive settings and beautiful clothes and jewels photographed in color.

Sharing the star roster with Lana Turner are Anthony Quinn, Richard Basehart, Sandra Dee, John Saxon, Lloyd Nolan, Anna May Wong, Ray Walston and Virginia Grey.

GROVER CLEVELAND

Born in Caldwell, New Jersey, March 18, 1837. He grew up in western New York where his family had moved in 1841. As a clerk in a Buffalo lawyer's office he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1859. At 26 he was appointed assistant district attorney of Erie County and seven years later was elected sheriff.

In 1881 he was elected Mayor of Buffalo and the following year Governor of New York. Nominated the Democratic candidate for President in 1884, he was elected with the help of Republican reform elements.

He was inaugurated the twenty-second President of the United States on March 4, 1885. Proving his stated belief that the President should act with bold independence and selfless courage, he set a new high standard for public life and party leadership. His earnest appeal for tariff reduction caused his defeat in the election of 1888.

Elected President again in 1892, he was inaugurated the twenty-fourth President of the United States on March 4, 1893. Faced with a panic, he forced repeal of the Silver Act and upheld the gold standard almost alone. Denounced by business for his tariff stand and by western farmers for maintaining the gold reserve, he left the White House without a party but is now regarded as one of the most fearless and masterful to hold that office. He died at Princeton, New Jersey on June 24, 1908, aged 71.

Other income for Monroe County farmers during the year was made up of $912,000 from the sale of dairy products; $358,000 from horticultural specialties; $265,000 from other livestock and products; $13,000 from forest products on the farm and $11,000 from the sale of fruit and nuts.

AID STORAGE — Harvesting apples at the right stage of maturity will do more to lengthen their storage life and prevent spoil than artificial aids, says Carl S. Bittner, Penn State extension pomologist. Quality and appearance are influenced also by the color of the fruit, condition of trees, and kind of containers used for storage.

The $100,000 bill is used only in transactions between the U. S. Treasury.

Farmers Urged To Vote In ASC County Election

DAVID H. Griffith, chairman of the Monroe County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee issued an appeal today to county farmers to vote in the election of ASC county and community committeemen to serve for the 12 month period beginning October 1, 1960 and extending through September 30, 1961.

The nominees for community number one, Hamilton, Stroud, Smithfield and Middle Smithfield townships are N. J. Courtright, Herbert Courtright, John Fisher, Earl Learn, Raymond Alleger, Orien Reish, Kenneth A. Reaser, Archie Heller, C. Harold Haney, Marlin Serfass and John S. Michael Jr.

Community number two, Tobyhanna, Coolbaugh, Jackson, Pocono, Price, Paradise and Barrett townships are Jacob L. Learn, Sterling Miller, Norman E. Possinger Sr., Homer L. Singer, George D. Jones, Paul Miller, William Bond, Willis Dyson, George Kerrick, A. T. Blakeslee and Milo Argot.

The nominees for community number three, Chestnuthill, Poik, Elder and Ross townships are Raymond Everett, T. J. Thompson, Charles Hendry, Lawrence Smale, Floyd Smith, Wilmer Kregler, Paul Kostenbader and Theodore Bush.

Donald F. deOtte, John R. Smith and Earl F. Shafer are the chairmen of the Community Election Boards.

For each community committee three regular members will be chosen, with the person receiving the highest number of votes becoming chairman. Two alternates also will be elected in each community, to serve in the absence of a regular member. The elected chairman of the community committee will also serve as delegate to the county convention to elect the county committee.

Griffith points out that all persons are eligible to vote who are eligible to participate in any of the programs being administered by State and County ASC Committees.

Balloting for community committeemen will be conducted by mail. All farmers on file in the county ASC office will be mailed ballots, containing a self-addressed return envelope on August 22nd and they must be returned to the county office by no later than September 2, 1960, to be recognized and included in the official tabulation.

In the event an eligible person has not received a ballot, it may be obtained by contacting the county ASC office.

KEEP EGGS CLEAN — Two or three inches of clean, dry shavings in nests in the laying house help prevent breakage and keep the eggs clean. F. H. Leuschner, Penn State extension poultry specialist, suggests frequent gathering to keep eggs clean. Wiring the droppings boards, keep both hens and eggs clean, helps keep both hens and eggs clean.

Question Box

By George Abraham Question of week: R. L. of Pen Argyl: "We put in a new lawn last year and it came along beautifully. Now we notice that crabgrass has taken over the entire lawn. Would you recommend plowing it up and doing the entire lawn over again? How can we kill the crabgrass?"

Plowing up the lawn would be expensive and you still wouldn't solve the problem because apparently the seed is in the soil and will continue to be there for many years. It would be cheaper to first try chemical means for eradicating the crabgrass.

One of the best means is to use Disodium methyl arsonate, a dry powder sold under various trade names at your garden supply store. The common name is methyl arsonate, a material that contains arsenic which the crabgrass absorbs. Two doses about a week apart will do the job temporarily, but remember that there are millions of crabgrass seed lying dormant in the soil and you can expect to have crabgrass again next year. Chemical treatments are temporary measures.

There are many other chemicals used for crabgrass control. A good healthy turf is the best crabgrass killer you can get.

LAST CHANCE—Late August is still planting time in the home garden—for a few crops, such as endive, kale, and Chinese cabbage, reminds James O. Dutt, Penn State extension vegetable gardening specialist. Even September 1 is not too late for spinach, lettuce, and early-maturing radishes. Sow the seed thinly, and thin again when the plants come up, if necessary.

Green Thumb Helpful Hints For Growers

MANY OF our friends who have a wisteria vine are disappointed to have it make nice growth, but no flowers. One letter I received asked: "Is it true that you must have a male and female plant in order to have blossoms?" The answer is no.

This plant has male and female floral parts on blossoms on the same plant. Under normal conditions, all wisterias should bloom. Some varieties take their time and bloom later in life, others earlier. Quite often flower buds are killed by winter cold.

Usually, grafted plants will bear earlier than plants grown from seedlings, but this is not always true. If your wisteria is 8 years old and does not bloom, try this: Dig a trench around the base, 1 1/2 feet deep, and 2 feet or so from the base.

Mix superphosphate with soil and return the earth (use 5 lbs. for each inch in diameter).

This combined root pruning and superphosphate treatment helps both wisterias and dogwoods in producing blossoms. Job is best done in spring.

Actually, wisterias need a rather poor soil, not one that's full of plant food nutrients, as this causes lots of growth and not many blossoms. Some people have forced wisterias (also spelled Wistaria) into blossoms by incorporating some coal ashes with the soil.

If your wisteria is young (under 8 years) don't be in too big a hurry for blossoms, because this plant is stubborn and will bloom only when it gets in the mood.

Cucumbers: You'll have more and better cucumbers if you pick cucumbers daily. Never allow any fruit to mature on the vine. This reduces the development of more fruit. If temperatures are above 80 degrees Fahrenheit and there is enough moisture, it'll pay you to harvest your fruit at least every other day.

Once started, cucumbers are fast growers and big cukes can make vines age rapidly. Knobby fruit is the result of poor pollination, or possibly weather conditions. Bitterness is also a weather-induced problem.

Fuchsia Notes: This handsome house plant does well outdoors or in hanging baskets on porches. Keep yours sprayed with malathion to keep aphids or red spiders down. If flowers or buds drop this is due to high temperature or poor light, or a lack of moisture.

In the garden it should grow into a big plant. When September rolls around you'll want to take cuttings and start new plants. This is easy enough to do. Simply root them in water or sand, then pot them up in one-third loam, one-third sand, one-third peat mixture.

Don't attempt to bring the old plant indoors, unless you cut it back quite drastically. Plants from cuttings will be better for you indoors.

RUST HARD ON MACHINES — Farm machines can rust out quicker when neglected than they wear out under normal usage and with good care. A rust preventive on frictioning parts when machines are not in use pays dividends later in longer life expectancy of the machines, reminds Burton S. Horne, Penn State extension agricultural engineer.

WATER WINDOW BOXES — Water window boxes regularly during the summer. A little feeding also can be helpful, according to A. O. Rasmussen, Penn State extension ornamental horticulturist.

Dear Abby

You Made Her What She Is

Dear Abby: Tell me if this is just a stage my daughter is going through or what? She just graduated from high school and plans to go to college in September. She leaves her clothes where she takes them off and doesn't make her bed unless I yell about it. Asking her in a normal tone gets nowhere. I must raise my voice and shout three or four times. She calls this nagging. She never volunteers to help with a thing. When she was younger I didn't mind picking up after her, but at her age am I wrong to ask her to pick up after herself?

NAGGING MOTHER

Dear Mother: Mothers who "do not mind" picking up after their children when they are young, should not complain if they have to pick up after them when they are older. Close the door to your daughter's room and let her wade around in the mess until she finds it so hopelessly inconvenient she will tidy it up herself. It won't improve the looks of her room, but it will do wonders for your blood pressure.

Dear Abby: This is going to be hard to believe, but it's a fact. I love a wonderful guy and he loves me. We want to get married but he says the thought of the needle for the blood test makes him weak in the knees. He is 23 and I am 21. Is there any state where you don't need a blood test to get married? He said he'd drive a thousand miles. WANTS TO GET MARRIED

Dear Abby: There's Nevada in the west, Maryland in the east, Minnesota in the north and South Carolina in the south. It shouldn't be difficult to sew him up without a needle. Dear Abby: I don't know how to start this letter but I know if I don't look for help with my problem, my marriage will be ruined pretty soon. I have been married for four years and I have a two-year-old child. I feel so ashamed and guilty about married love that I don't know what to do. There are many questions I would like to know the answers to but I am ashamed to ask my doctor and I can't talk to my mother or friends about anything so intimate.

Please, Abby, can you recommend a good frank book about what is right and what is wrong in married love? I only went through Eighth grade. TEARS

Dear Tears: Send me your name and address and I will recommend three or four excellent books on this subject. I admire your uncommonly intelligent approach to a very common problem.

Dear Abby: That dog fight you had in your column recently brings to mind a wonderful quote by Mark Twain. "If you pick up a hungry dog and feed him, he will not bite you. That is the principal difference between man and dog."

Respectfully submitted by— A DOG LOVER

If you want a personal reply from Abby, write to her in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She answers all letters.

Incomes Seen As Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expanding business in 1959 was reported by the Commerce Department Sunday to have sent personal income to new highs in most states.

Per capita personal income was reported at $2,166 in 1959, or about $100 more than the $2,069 recorded in 1958.

For the country as a whole, the department said personal income totaled 381 billion dollars last year, a rise of 23 billion or 6 per cent over 1958.

"With consumer prices up about 1 per cent from 1958," the report said, "the advances in the main represented increases in real purchasing power."
